

Published based on Nfl Gambling Lines - Carolina Panthers At Falcons

Nfl Gambling Lines - Carolina Panthers At Falcons

Nfl gambling lines handicappers have come to regard the Panthers as one of the least attractive teams on the board when factoring the nfl betting odds.

Nfl gambling prospects appeal with Carolina is in opposing them with the other side as the Panthers have gushed red ink with football betting probabilities all year long.

The Atlanta Falcons will host the Carolina Panthers in the regular season finale for both teams at the Georgia Dome with a broadcast on FOX that is set to start at 1:05 PM ET. Be sure and open your account at the sportsbook for the side and total prospects on this NFC matchup.

Atlanta must win to guarantee the clinching of the National Football Conference South as if they lose and New Orleans wins the Falcons will blow the division title and have to settle for a wild card spot. With a 2-13 record starting Week 17 the Panthers have lost more games than the Falcons have won in the 2010 Nfl regular season, they now hold a 12-3 record this season. In plus side Panthers news, they have secured the No. 1 total draft pick for next season. The just other time the Panthers have had the No. 1 pick -- before their rookie year in 1995 -- they traded it away for more picks. Regrettably for coach John Fox this means nothing to him as owner Jerry Richardson has denied Fox a deal extension. So what will it be? New Qb for the Panthers? They already have Jimmy Clausen who the drafted in the 2nd round this year, but he's having difficulty top the NFL's worst offense. He has simply thrown two touchdown passes and eight interceptions.

Carolina has a football gambling record of 2-13 straight up and 4-11 against the spread with only 6 of their games beating the total. The Panthers were manhandled at Pittsburgh this past week in a 27-3 loss. Carolina ranks at the bottom of the charts in football for total offense, passing yards, and scoring offense whereas ranking 24th for points versus on defense.

It's been a difficult rookie season for Jimmy Clausen as the signal caller has a humiliating and impossible 56.8 Quarterback rating with a 2/8 TD/INT ratio whereas averaging just 5.2 yards per try. A lot of wonder if Clausen will ever recover from this year and if it will destroy his development permanently. Carolina's offensive line is one of the worst in football and has granted 47 sacks.

Accidents have also been a big problem for coach John Fox's team as the long list contains celebrity running back DeAngelo Williams. The lineup was gutted last offseason with important losses such as Julius Peppers to free agency. Fox is as excellent as gone after this one.

Atlanta has a football betting record of 12-3 straight up and 10-5 vs the spread with only 5 of their games falling under the total. The Atlanta Falcons are coming off a 17-14 Monday Evening home loss to New Orleans which cut off an 8 match profitable streak. The Atlanta Falcons stay among the best balanced teams with pro football betting prospects as they rate fifth for offensive scoring and points granted on defense.

Place your Superbowl bets at the online sportsbook today!

You can also find this article published on Nfl Gambling Lines - Carolina Panthers At Falcons, and on the tag pages , football, jimmy clausen, national football conference, nfl betting odds, record.