

Published based on Sunday Night Football Wagering - Dallas Cowboys Versus Washington Redskins

Sunday Night Football Wagering - Dallas Cowboys Versus Washington Redskins

Interesting struggle for the bottom of the NFC East Conference. The interesting third place Washington Redskins travel to beautiful Dallas, Texas to battle against the fourth place Cowboys. This exciting, although useless, match happens on December 19th so make sure to spice the game up with an internet bet for your favorite losing team. Thankfully, the rivalry between the Washington Redskins and the Cowboys is over enough to make up for the lackluster performances of both teams this season.

The Dallas Cowboys are favored in NFL sports betting internet as they host the Washington Redskins on Sunday. The Dallas Cowboys are 6-point favorites in Football betting at the online sports book with the total posted at 45.

Both teams have a short while ago experienced narrow losses on their home turfs, although the Washington team loss could have been the more damaging one. They lost their game on an awful field goal, which ended in a loss to the Buccaneers with a score of 17-16. On the flip side, the Dallas Cowboys lost a fight of a match to the Philadelphia Eagles, score 30-27.

Albert Haynesworth is carried out with the Washington Redskins and since his distracting presence is now in the team's past, it is time for this defense to get over it to better things and ideally more wins. Honestly, there is no other direction to go but up with the Washington Redskins defensive teams. They have the suspect distinction of being the worst defense in pro football this season, which should be a hint for everybody looking to place a wager on this NFL match with a sports book. They give up an average of 400 yards per game, and the matchup against the Dallas Cowboys should not be much diverse.

The Dallas Cowboys finally learned they've got a running game over the last handful of weeks' bouts, and this match may very well be yet another show off of the Dallas squad racing the ball over and over again. Jon Kitna is filling in remarkably well for Tony Romo this year. In fact, he's actually putting together a year that will play with any of Romo's past few Football seasons.

Nevertheless, the loss of Dez Bryant does damage this squad. Thankfully, they've got plenty of Plan B's and are not afraid to use them. Their passing competition is reliably racking up over 275 yards per competition. Thus, the Cowboys offense has a distinct advantage over the Washington Redskins defense.

As well, the Cowboys defense has been able to do a pretty decent position versus teams racing the ball, yielding over 110 yards on the ground. The most pressing anxiety for the Cowboys defensive squad is their cover corners. Several NFL teams this year have taken edge of the weak corners of Dallas Cowboys and, because of this, they are giving up over 244 yards per competition when teams pass the ball.

Sports book probabilities have the Cowboys as the minus 6 point home favorites, with the total over under at 45. Place your wager on NFL today and be sure you don't miss this exciting possibility!

You can also find this article published on Sunday Night Football Wagering - Dallas Cowboys Versus Washington Redskins, and on the tag pages Defense, football, jon kitna, narrow losses, Redskins, washington redskins.