

Published based on Thursday Night NFL Wagering - Bears Versus Dolphins

Thursday Night NFL Wagering - Bears Versus Dolphins

The Chicago Bears go to Miami to face the Dolphins in week 11. The Miami Dolphins have recently signed veteran quarterback Patrick Ramsey, to try and support improve their lineup. They're arriving from a huge win and their greatest point total of the year last weekend, when they defeat the Titans 29-17. The Chicago Bears will attempt to stage a comeback in the second half of the year as they travel to Miami to battle against the Miami Dolphins Thursday evening November 18. The Chicago Bears need to work on their offensive line in the NFL Draft for 2011 due to the fact this team in front of Jay Cutler has been nonexistent for the 2010 NFL year. Cutler has either been on his back or racing for his life all year long when betting on football.

The Miami Dolphins permitted on Chad Henne and returned to Chad Pennington. Then Pennington left the competition against the Titans with what seemed like a separated shoulder and Henne was additionally injured. Enter the one and only Tyler Thigpen to come to the rescue in free online betting. The Titans defense was excellent at knocking out qbs but not preventing the Miami Dolphins offense.

The Chicago Bears now have sole possession of 1st place in the NFC North. The Bears one time again had trouble to run the ball however they did appear better on the offensive line versus the Vikings.

The Dolphins defense has been strong this year. They have given up just over one hundred yards per game on the ground and just over 200 yards per game through the air. The defense is anchored by Karlos Dansby who's been stable yet not impressive in the middle of the field. Dansby has become active as a run stopper and splitting up underneath passing routes.

The Bears offense has been uninspiring this year under the guidance of Mike Martz. Martz could be an amazing offensive mind yet if the offensive line doesn't keep the defense down it does not mean much. Matt Forte has displayed some promise this year but he has been missing in action the last few games. Forte is an excellent pass catching back from the back field but can't get entangled in a sustained running attack. The Dolphins defense has the slight edge over the Chicago Bears offense.

The Bears defense has been their savior this year. The return of Brian Urlacher and inclusion of Julius Peppers on the defensive line are making the Bears defense one of the top 3 or four defenses in football. The front line flushes the qbs from the pocket and the linebackers clean them up on the outside.

Brandon Marshall has been under used by the Dolphins offense this season, Chad Pennington being the number 1 qb ought to be in good shape for this game. It'll be his 2nd full week dealing with the # 1 offense and he should be in great form. The wild cat run by Ronnie Brown continues to be the Dolphins bread and butter play but Pennington could bring an added dimension. The Chicago Bears defense has the advantage over the Miami Dolphins offense.

The Dolphins are the negative 1.5 point favorites with the total over under at 39.5.

You can also find this article published on Thursday Night NFL Wagering - Bears Versus Dolphins, and on the tag pages Defense, jay cutler, karlos dansby, mike martz, NFL, Thursday.