Getting Out Of The Country Is Still Tough

Getting out of the country is not an easy thing to do this summer thanks to many things getting disrupted, what are the reasons behind people actually really struggling when it comes to going away in the UK?

Strikes

BA are striking a lot at the moment and whilst it might do the staff a bit of good if something comes out of it, it is not doing the people who want to fly any good at all. I cannot see things improving over the next few years let alone this summer so make sure that you know this. If you are booked with BA then I would advise that you ring ahead to make sure that your flight is still occurring. The key thing to do when it comes to this is just ignore it if you can, let them deal with it.

Ash

Although it would seem that the Icelandic ash cloud has ceased to exist for the time being there is still a chance that it could erupt again and even worse, the bigger one next to it could go up and this would be awful. Although the guys in charge of the airspace over Britain have said planes can fly higher to escape the ash if this happens again it does not help the smaller airlines that cannot reach these heights at all.

Staying In The UK

Although staying here in the UK is sometimes not the option that people want to take it can still be something well worthwhile doing and if you are stuck for places to go then why not look into holidays in Devon or perhaps one of those UK based spa breaks or even self catering Torquay. So although there aren't that many options to take when it comes to staying the UK there are still some fantastic ones out there for people to look into. > holidays in Devon or perhaps one of those UK based spa breaks or even self catering Torquay.

There are not too many roads to drive down when it comes to a holiday here in the UK but there are still some opportunities out there.
