

Published based on Improve Your Game By Means Of A Miniature Caddy

Improve Your Game By Means Of A Miniature Caddy

You can improve your golf game by utilizing a GPS. Mad as that sounds it happens to be a fact in most instances. It isn't truly knowing where you are that does it unless you are really lost. The reality is that most Golfing GPS units do a lot more than give you your coordinates.

Most Golfing GPS units will tell you the positioning of the sand traps and other things of that ilk. They will also tell you how far away you are from the hole and what your best tack is to get there. Some will give information on the greens. As you can see, this is stuff you could get from a good caddy. It is a bit like having a caddy in your pocket.

Some of the popular brands of Golfing GPS units include :

- a Golf Buddy World Platinum
- a Golf Buddy Tour
- a Golf Buddy Pro

You should check out golf GPS reviews for more information on these units.

The concept on this is that these little units maintain a tally of your score and let you keep a record of your game so that you can mark your improvement. By knowing where all of the traps are hopefully you can avoid ending up in the water unless you want your unit to need to have to double as a boat GPS.

The whole concept is to offer you all of the data you want to make the finest selections which may hopefully result in an improved golfing score. Most of these units will allow you to download the information on your favourite golf courses so that the info you get should be reasonably correct.

There are many models to make a choice from and finding the one which most accurately fits your wishes can be a challenge. You must learn as much as you can about as many of these units as you can and look for reviews, particularly those from equitable sources.

All of the units will give you your GPS coordinates and every one of them will give you at least a little bit of information like how far you are from the hole. For example, the Bushnell Neo Gives you the front, center and back of the green distances and can be acquired from places like Amazon for only $90.00.

A unit such as the Garmin Approach G5 will give you the course maps including fairways hazards and greens for most US golfing courses (It is dependent on what country you are in.) and will keep score for at least 4 players. Again at places like Amazon this unit will run just over $300.00.

There are much fancier units that do more but they cost more, and there are real basic units that do less and are priced accordingly, but the main thing is to find one that does what you need it to that's priced within your budget.

When you're researching these units you must always seek out user reviews so that you know what others have experienced and this should help you in finding out which unit is the best for you.

Contented looking!

You can also find this article published on Improve Your Game By Means Of A Miniature Caddy, and on the tag pages golf buddy, golfing, gps coordinates, information, sand traps, unit.