Selecting The Right Golf Holiday Abroad

Are you looking into a golf holiday that will also make your wife happy? Check out a golf holiday in Spain as a prime example, especially if your wife will be going and does not want to spend time on the golf course. Both Barcelona and Madrid are beautiful and romantic destinations.

Many villas in Madrid are exceptional, creating a second honeymoon experience along with the golf holiday tour. Of course, a trip to Tuscany in Italy is also an excellent opportunity. While there, you could golf and take tours to a number of the wineries and vineyards nearby.

Some golf enthusiasts could even choose a destination in Cambodia, Vietnam, or Thailand. Without a doubt, these Asian cities are truly stunning for any type of golf holiday. They are green and boast a beautifully lush and tropical environment creating one of the most exotic golf holidays ever. Even the locals are amazingly hospitable people that greatly appreciate the visiting tourists. Then, when the perfect climate is added to the mix, along with great shopping and incredible food, it is no wonder that many people make the choice to head to Asia.

The process of putting golf holidays and tours together that will entice your wife will require numerous decisions. Obviously, the location of the tour is the most important so as you look at different places, we recommend in addition to the United States, you also look at South America, Canada, the Caribbean and Southeast Asia.

To work with a travel professional in organizing your trip, you can visit a local travel agency or look at possibilities online. Travel experts know how to tailor a trip specifically to you, based on the amount of money you can afford, the type of setting you want, and other preferences.

Along with getting your golf holiday tour organized, working with a professional would include air travel, rental car, and accommodations. These golf specialists are so good at what they do that they can also provide suggestions for restaurants, shopping, and sightseeing close to where you will be golfing to accommodate your wife's desires as well.

Having someone handle all the details of a trip such as this would allow you to relax and enjoy time on the green, playing the great sport of golf.

So, what are you waiting for? Go online today or call your local travel agent and check out the options for planning one of the greatest golf holidays both you and your wife will enjoy!
