The Exciting Games On The 2011 Penn State College Football Schedule

The 2011 Penn State Football Schedule has been launched and that means fans can start picking the actual games most intriguing to watch in the upcoming season.

The face of the Big Ten transformed this season when Nebraska had been added, getting the actual conference to 12 teams as well as allowing it to split up into 2 sections and add a conference championship game. Despite this evolving look to the actual conference, Penn State's schedule has somewhat of a typical feel to it compared to prior years.

Certainly, the actual leading game on the schedule for Penn State in 2011 may be the second game of the season against Alabama. Last year Penn State travelled to Tuscaloosa to play Alabama and ended up on the losing end from the game. This season, Alabama comes to Happy Valley to setup an extremely intriguing out of conference match up that will be watched not only through both fan bases, but fan bases from the SEC as well as Big Ten conferences in general. Both will be searching for a pleasant win for their conference.

The Alabama game is sandwiched between other less intriguing out-of-conference match-ups. The Nittany Lions will play Indiana State to begin the season at home, as well as after Alabama will go on the road to face Temple. Penn State rounds out their out of conference schedule having a home game against Eastern Michigan. While Penn State vs Alabama seats will be scarce, with regard to fans Penn State vs Temple football tickets ought to be easier to find.

After the out of conference schedule, things get a lot more fascinating because Penn State gets into its Big Ten schedule. There are some excellent games within this portion of the schedule, such as some match-ups that have developed nicely over the years for example games against Purdue, Iowa, as well as Northwestern. Penn State ought to be favored in all those games, however it's been shown through the years that those opponents will invariably provide Penn State a competitive game and also the result's never certain. The finish of the schedule is once more first class with regard to Penn State fans in 2011. Besides the actual Alabama game, the three greatest games on the schedule are perhaps at the end of the entire year. Penn State plays traditional power Ohio State on the road at the end of November. They after that play who many think may be the favorite to win the conference in Wisconsin also on the road the next week. Those back to back games is a tough test for any team.

Penn State ends the entire year with the team which likely will end up a budding rival for Penn State in coming years, and that is Nebraska. Penn State has already played Nebraska in out-of-conference games several times. Now the actual games in conference will mean even more. Penn State fans can look forward to many excellent games versus the actual cornhuskers in coming years.

If the cards drop the proper way in 2011, Penn State fans might be lucky enough to find themselves in the actual inaugural Big Ten Championship game in Indianapolis.
